

Further de-regulation of media ownership would clearly put corporate greed ahead of public interest. Our country is far too diverse to have its channels of information controlled by the agenda of the select few. Already, one must actively search for news coverage that even considers more than a single point of view. Further consolidation of news sources would be disastrous.